

*EFIS-EJI Ruggero Ceppellini Advanced School of Immunology
La Scuola Superiore d'Immunologia Ruggero Ceppellini*

Presents an Advanced EFIS-EJI Course on

T cell memory

Directors

Stephen Schoenberger (La Jolla Inst. for Allergy and immunology, La Jolla, CA, USA) &
Francesca Di Rosa (Inst. of Molecular Biology and Pathology, CNR, Rome, Italy)

Anacapri, Capri island (Naples, Italy) , 12 - 15 October 2018

The Course will offer an overview of key cellular and molecular signals required for a durable T cell response, focussing on emerging themes in the field. Fundamental questions and translational implications will be discussed. Participants will have plenty of opportunity for scientific interactions and networking in a friendly atmosphere. Course will be held in the charming CNR congress center in Anacapri.

Opening Keynote Lecture by Polly Matzinger (Bethesda, MD, USA)

In immunology (as in life) what you think influences what you do

Vincenzo Barnaba (Rome, IT) CD8+ T cell responses in autoimmunity and tumor immunology

Francesca Di Rosa (Rome, IT) CD8 T cell memory in the bone marrow

Peter Katsikis (Rotterdam, NL) Post-transcriptional control of CTL immunity

David Masopust (Minneapolis, USA) Resident Memory T Cells

Luigia Pace (Turin, IT) Epigenetics & heterochromatin silencing during CD8+ T cell fate commitment

Stephen Schoenberger (La Jolla, USA) Functional plasticity in CD4+ T cells

René van Lier (Amsterdam, NL) Blood and Beyond: Trigger-happy T cells residing in tissues

Andrew Weinberg (Portland, OR, USA) Cancer-specific tumor infiltrating CD8 T cells have a resident memory phenotype: implications for clinical intervention

Dietmar Zehn (Munich, DE) Molecular control of T cell differentiation in chronic infection

Closing Lecture by Polly Matzinger (Bethesda, MD, USA)

Autoimmunity: are we asking the right question?
